

Meg Dombro was the first teacher hired as an Advanced Academic Resource Teacher (AART) in Fairfax County and has worked for two years supporting advanced academics at Franklin and Liberty middle schools. She collaborates with teachers in order to provide rigorous, engaging, and meaningful learning experiences to students in all content areas.

Meg has been a professional educator since 2002 and has extensive experience working with advanced learners. She earned her bachelor's degree at UNC Chapel Hill, her first master's degree in Education with a focus on curriculum and instruction from UCLA and her second masters in School Administration and Supervision from UVA. She has worked as a middle school teacher with students at all ability levels, including advanced learners, in Lawndale, CA, and the following FCPS Middle Schools: Kilmer Level IV Center, Rachel Carson Level IV Center, Liberty, and Franklin. She is also a professional curriculum designer and has been published in Teacher Created Materials and various other publications.

A mother of two, Meg grew up in Northern Virginia and is committed to using her 20 years of educational experience to inspire a better future for all kids in our community. Meg also serves on the Advanced Academic Programs Committee Advisory Committee as a community member for the Sully District.
